PRICE THREE CENTS.

CELEBRATION OF 25TH ANNIVERSARY

By Kingston Council, No. 275, K. of C. The Week Beginning October 22—Program Will Consist of Memorial Mass, Major Degree, Banquet and Reception.

Kingston Council No. 275, Knights of Columbus was inaugurated in this city on October 24, 1897 and the local council will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary the week beginning Sunday, October 22. Twenty-eight members of the Catholic churches throughout the city assembled at Pythian Hall, corner of John and Wall street on October 24, 1897 and laid the foundation for a local council of Knights of Columbus. From year to year the membership increased and larger halls throughout the city were rented. The Very Rev. John J. Hickey was appointed chaplain and has held the office ever since. With a membership of about 600 and the council growing rapidly the need for a home was imperative. In April, 1914, their beautiful club house on Broadway was erected and a few years ago the burning of the mortgage took place.

The majority of those twenty-eight are still alive and are the charter members of the organization and they look back with great satisfaction upon the accomplishments of the order. The local council now numbers 1,100. On Sunday morning, October 22, the celebration will be opened at St. Joseph's Church at which time a memorial mass will be celebrated. In the afternoon at two o'clock the major degree will be conferred upon a large class of candidates.

Tuesday evening at o'clock a banquet will be tendered the members at the Stuyvesant Hotel. Eminent speakers will be heard at this time among whom will be the Very Rev. John J. Hickey and Dr. John G. Corley, state deputy of the order.

Wednesday evening the celebration will close with a reception and dance at the club rooms for the members and their families.

WOMEN "WETS" PASS THROUGH

Their Voices Not Standing Campaign Strain—No Meeting Here—Desire Wine Shops, Not Saloons.

The automobile bearing Miss Alice Carpenter and her sister "wets" paused in Kingston this morning on the trip from New York to the Republican convention at Albany, where they will endeavor to influence the convention to eliminate "dry" candidates. There was no open air meeting here, as had been announced, the women's throats having become so hoarse that public speaking was impossible. Besides Miss Carpenter, the party included Mrs. Mary Grout, a delegate to the convention, Miss Irene Grout and Mrs. Louis Seigel.

A similar party of women is on its way to the Democratic state convention.

Both parties are under the auspices of the Molly Pitcher Club of the New York State Division, Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

The association seeks "to get the Volstead act out of the law and keep it out" to have prohibition enforcement left to the several states while the eighteenth amendment is in effect; to work for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Miss Carpenter announced here that the association is opposed to the return of the saloon; desires the "old fashioned wine shop" where wine or beer is brought to be taken elsewhere for consumption, and advocates the sale of liquors of high alcoholic content through the drug stores.

NEWBURGH DIST. M. E. CONFERENCE

(Official Report.)

The Fourth District Conference of the Newburgh district of the New York conference assembled at the Burton Hill House, Wawarsing, N. Y., September 19-22, under the leadership of that splendid district superintendent, the Reverend Herbert E. Wright, D. D. This was the fourth time since Dr. Wright was district superintendent that he called all the men of the district together, and it was the best conference to which he has summoned them. Among the men came the representatives of the 61 churches of the Newburgh district, and for these four days were held down to the closest work that ever was planned for such a conference. Morning, noon, and night, and all the hours between, were packed to overflowing.

The heavens beamed upon the assembly. The autumnal skies were perfect. The wide expanse of the Catskill Mountains were an exalted inspiration at every glance from the open windows, through the balmy atmosphere fragrant with fruit and harvest.

The cuisine of the Burton Hill House was surpassingly fine. The fraternity and brotherhood and democracy were surpassed only by the annual session of the New York conference held in the New York Military Academy in 1921, and that only by numbers.

Every man was most enthusiastic over the program which proved better than was anticipated. Here were the faculty: Dr. Stockdale of Bayside, N. Y., permanent professor of homiletics; Dr. Joseph of Tottenville, N. Y., book-reviewer for the Methodist Review with three strong lectures; Dr. Staley F. Davis of the New York Area Board, of Sunday Schools with eloquent message; Dr. A. I. Hamilton of the New York Anti-Saloon League; and Dr. F. A. Dent who trained all his guns on the centenary, as well as being leader of the final vespers service on Mt. Lookout. The stewardship and Retired Ministers' Funds Committee poured their message into the hearts of the men.

District Superintendent Wright closed the conference by a stirring, inspirational address which sent all the men back to their charges determined to do or die for the kingdom of God in heroic service for Jesus Christ.

Like Peter of old, in their enthusiasm, the men suggested that their district superintendent ought to be reappointed to the Newburgh district for the next 100 years.

SENATOR WATSON DIES SUDDENLY

Picturesque Georgia "Anti" Succumbs to Asthma of Long Standing—In Active Newspaper Work Up to Last.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 26.—Senator Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, died early today at his home in Chevy Chase, Md., following a week's serious illness with asthma from which he had suffered for 15 years. He was sixty-six years old on September 5.

Coming to the senate on March 4, 1921 as an "anti-Wilson, anti-League and anti-war measures Democrat," Watson became one of the national capitol's most picturesque figures. His services here had not prevented him from continuing as the publisher and editor of his newspaper, the Columbia Sentinel and on Sunday night, apparently in improved health, he dictated editorials for the next issue.

Although his poor health during the past few weeks had kept him from some sessions of the senate, he insisted upon being in his seat last Friday during the closing hours of the Sixty-seventh Congress. This was contrary to the advice of his physicians, Dr. Thomas E. Conrad and Dr. Grant S. Barnhart, but he appeared to have suffered no ill effects.

He remained throughout yesterday at his home, No. 8 West Melrose Place, Chevy Chase, and ate a hearty dinner last night. A few hours later he suffered a relapse and his condition became serious. Death occurred at three o'clock this morning.

Senator Watson is survived by his wife who returned to the Watson home in Thomson, Ga., last spring after a severe illness, one brother, W. A. Watson, and a sister, Mrs. Julia Clatt, both of Thomson, Ga.

JOHN F. CONLIN UNDER ARREST

Arraigned Here by Federal Officers for Selling Intoxicants and Hearing Adjudged Until Oct. 18.

Two Federal prohibition enforcement officers visited the cafe of John F. Conlin on John street, near Wall, Monday evening about 9 o'clock, shivered and remarked to Mr. Conlin, addressing him as "Jack" that it was cold, and asked for a drink of whiskey. They seemed to be "all right" and a drink was poured out for each but instead of drinking the liquor they poured it into a receptacle. Then Conlin was taken to police headquarters and was paroled to appear at Newburgh before U. S. Commissioner Collins this morning. Mr. Conlin this morning secured William D. Brinnier as his counsel and at noon Conlin was taken before U. S. Commissioner D. B. Deyo at his office in the Preston building, Fair street, instead of to Newburgh, and arraigned by one of the Federal enforcement officers, charging him with selling liquor of over the prescribed alcoholic content. The hearing was adjourned until 2 p. m. October 18, to be held before U. S. Commissioners Collins at Newburgh.

WALKER WESTON MEETS MILLER

Says Sentiment For Governor Is Strong in State, and Predicts His Re-election—Is Two Days Ahead Of His Schedule.

Two days ahead of his schedule, Edward Payson Weston, veteran hiker on a 500 mile walk from Buffalo to New York city, stopped off to pay his respects to Governor Miller in the executive chamber at 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon and within an hour was on his way to Troy, where he passed the night. His reception on his journey from the Albany city line to the Capitol and again on the road to Troy was as enthusiastic as might be expected from sight of the white-haired, khaki-clad pedestrian, gallantly and vigorously rolling up the miles before him. He carried a riding crop to which was attached a small American flag.

His meeting with Governor Miller was picturesque. The governor stepped briskly across the room as Mr. Weston advanced with Roy S. Smith, executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce. A broad smile accompanied the governor's handshake, and as Weston told him that from Buffalo to Albany he had met no one to dispute his election, the smile grew broader. After an exchange of pleasantries, the party was photographed.

BUSINESS DAY 64 DAY as the Government sees it

PREPARED BY RALPH F. COUCH

AN ARMISTICE ON CEDAR STREET

Mrs. Schermerhorn and Neighbor Glare At Each Other With "Hindenburg Line" Between—Only Gas Attacks So Far.

Trouble between Mrs. Nicholas S. Schermerhorn and a neighbor has resulted in several visits to the city court but today Judge Schrick came in possession of the entire story, and it is worth retelling.

The neighbor between whom and Mrs. Schermerhorn there has existed some difference of opinion is of the blood which caused her to call him a "Dutchman," with occasional "D" prefixed to it.

The "Dutchman" finally erected a fence between the properties and when Mrs. Schermerhorn asked him what it was for he replied:

"That is the Hindenburg line, and you better not cross it."

"Is that so?" asked Mrs. Schermerhorn contemptuously, and retired to her house.

When the "Dutchman" returned home that night, his attention was attracted to a pole which had been placed conspicuously alongside the fence and from the top of which waved a small American flag and beneath it a small French flag.

"What's that?" he asked of himself, aloud.

"That," said a voice which he knew well and which proceeded from the depths of a window in the Schermerhorn house, "that is the American flag and the flag of the Allies, and I guess they'll cross the Hindenburg line if they want."

Thus matters rested for several days. Then the "Dutchman" had occasion to cut down several trees and the branches of a number of other trees in his yard, and perhaps while waiting for the ashman to cart them away—possibly to show Mrs. Schermerhorn that she had not yet triumphed—he piled them all along the fence.

Mrs. Schermerhorn reported the brush pile to the fire department, and when Chief Chipp visited the premises he was impelled to order the brush removed because of its close proximity to frame buildings in the neighborhood and the danger of fire.

"What's this?" asked the "Dutchman" as he listened to the chief's directions.

At this interesting moment Mrs. Schermerhorn appeared on the scene. With arms folded proudly and one foot advanced and pressing down the sed in much the same way she might be stepping on the gas if she was in an automobile, she announced:

"There is your Hindenburg line and there is the American flag, well, I've crossed your Hindenburg line and I'm taking away your Argonne Forest. This is war, you don't little 'Dutchman,' and you'll know what it means when you fight with a woman."

The peace flag has not yet been displayed on Cedar street, nor has an armistice been declared, but hostilities have been suspended—temporarily, at least.

NOT TO BE FREED OF YOUNG BRIDE

Ulster Park Man of Sixty Asserts She Deceived Him—Mrs. Boynton Friendly With Stepfather—Lacked Sufficient Proof, Justice Morschauer Held.

Lack of sufficient proof of allegations in the complaint of Lewis Boynton, over 60, and wealthy Ulster Park retired business man, was the reason given by Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauer in special term in Poughkeepsie Saturday, for not granting an annulment of his marriage with 19-year-old Katherine Carl Boynton, on the grounds of fraud, in one of the most sensational hearings in recent months. Declaring that the case of the defendant was exceedingly "smelly," Justice Morschauer publicly scolded the young woman and her stepfather.

General denial of all allegations was the defense. Boynton in his complaint asserted that he was given to understand that his young wife was the blood daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Koehl, a business neighbor in Brooklyn. It was not until after their marriage, he said, that he learned Koehl was her stepfather, having married her mother when the daughter was but 18 months old. The relationship was admitted in evidence but testimony was entered to show that the daughter did not know the relationship until action for annulment came up.

It was brought out, and admitted by the defense that Mrs. Boynton and her stepfather were comparatively inseparable both before her marriage and beginning again shortly after the ceremony. The two nearly always lunched together, the girl being a bookkeeper in her stepfather's place of business. She also accompanied him on trips out of town, when he went away to buy second hand cars, the reason being, she said, to check him up on purchases, as he himself had not the business ability to consummate deals with profit.

Boynton was the first to take the stand. He said he and Mrs. Boynton were married on October 11, 1921, he having proposed to her and had become engaged a few days previous on his farm in Ulster Park. There was trouble almost from the very beginning, he said. And he began to hear ugly rumors. Shortly afterward he learned that Koehl was not her father.

Mrs. Boynton returned to the home of her mother and stepfather, and resumed her duties in his place of business. One of the witnesses said that she talked openly of the whole affair, saying in part, "Well, I got a fur coat out of him anyway." The coat, it was later established, cost Boynton $500.

It was also charged by the plaintiff that Mrs. Boynton had used her influence in securing a loan from Boynton to the amount of $2,500. This was admitted, Koehl stating he gave ample security for the loan.

Although Justice Morschauer declared that insufficient proof has been offered in the contention of the plaintiff, he has given Boynton's attorneys ten days in which to file briefs.

Ex-Mayor William D. Brinnier of Kingston appeared as an attorney for Boynton.

TURKS WARNED TO QUIT NEUTRAL ZONE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Sept. 26.—Admiral Brock, commander of the British fleet in the Turkish straits, was instructed today to send an ultimatum to Mustafa Kemal Pasha warning him that the British "would take steps" against the Turkish Nationalists unless they withdrew from the neutral zone on the Dardanelles within forty-eight hours.

The Turks continue to move heavy troops and Shkoda guns up towards the front.

So far the British have made no sign that they will grant the request of Hamid Bey, Constantinople representative of the Aze ir government, that they will discontinue the massing of reinforcements along the Dardanelles. The Turkish Nationalists are still clamoring for the immediate occupation of Thrace.

KIWANIS TEAMS PLAY THURSDAY

The pennant race in the Kiwanis League will be decided Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Kingston Fair Grounds, when the local Kiwanis team meets the team from Newburgh. The down-river men are a slight favorite because they have in their membership four semi-pro ball tossers, but Art Davis, Emil Boessneck, John Mack, John Bott and their mates are some "money players" themselves and hope to take the win. Kiwanis already lays claim to the Rotary championship.

Following the game winners, losers and other members of the two clubs will have dinner together at Cuneo's, Lake Katrine, the start being made from the Y. M. C. A. at 8:30 o'clock.

The proceeds of the game will be donated to the Boy Scout fund. Admission to everything being fixed at 25 cents.

Boy Scouts will be around selling tickets between now and game time and the Kiwanis Club has about 1,000 to dispose of or pay for.

THE WAR IN THE NEAR EAST.

The tragedy of Smyrna, though due directly to Turkish bloodthirstiness and fanaticism, is said to be indirectly due to political dissension among the Entente Powers, particularly England and France, which have rival interests in the Near East. The revival of the old balance of power, by which the Turks had so long profited, prevented the desirable and lasting settlement of the Turkish question which could have been accomplished after the World War. It is even charged that England and France are really responsible for the Greco-Turkish war, the British in their own interests encouraging the Greeks and the French in their own interests encouraging the Turks when the struggle was precipitated. Kemal also had individual German advice and official Russian sympathy. With all this help, and with the fanaticism of the Moslem world behind him, it is no wonder that he brought disastrous defeat upon the Greeks.

But the fires of war once lighted, the flames spread much farther than any European nation involved desired. Not only have there been massacres of unoffending Christians and the most frightful atrocities, with the region about Smyrna now clogged with desperate Christian refugees calling upon the world for help, but the victory-flushed Kemalists demand the restoration of Constantinople, Adrianople and Thrace, and are marching to seize them. It is recognized that they must be stopped but the French government is said to oppose the use of force. "The British government, on the other hand, has announced its determination to protect the freedom of the Dardanelles and prevent the Turks from crossing the Straits, even if it must act alone though calling upon both France and Italy to take a hand in the prosecution of the necessary enterprise. Whether Lloyd-George will be able to back up his words with deeds remains to be seen, for the British press is said to object very generally and British labor to be violently opposed to "another war."

The only action that the United States and the American people can properly take is to contribute to the Near Eastern relief and to assist in the rescue of the Smyrna refugees by means of our warships near the scene. If the Entente Powers are partly responsible for the situation, it is obvious their duty to interfere and bring about the best possible adjustment. It is their business anyhow because of their proximity to the scene and their greater interest in a desirable outcome. Unquestionably the Turks should be prevented from crossing into Europe, even if nothing is done to stop the massacre of Christians within Turkish dominions. And the duty of aiding the hapless and homeless Christians in the Smyrna district in every way possible is one which no nation of consequence can honorably ignore.

In its grim work of stamping out counter-revolution the Bolshevik government is said to have executed up to last February 1,766,113 persons, including $15,100 peasants and 369,820 professors, teachers, doctors and other "intellectuals." The remaining half a million and more were soldiers, policemen, land-owners and priests. In spite of the power revealed by this frightful record, we may be sure that even the Bolsheviks will not be able to trample, crush and kill indefinitely.

Animals as well as men may live a century. Among these Dr. Starley Hall mentions crows, eagles, ravens, swans and elephants, the last named sometimes reaching the age of 200. But the vegetable kingdom holds the record for longevity. Though some plants live only for a few days, in some cases even for but a few hours, there are Methusalehs among forest trees that have reached the age of more than 5,000 years.

An agreement between Hugo Stinnes and the representative of 130,000 proprietors in the devastated regions of France for the immediate delivery of brick, mortar, cement and other German building materials is said to await only the French government's ratification. At this distance it looks as if it would be wise to accept without hesitation all that Germany can deliver in this way, check it up and credit it on the reparation bill.

The Philadelphia Bulletin (Rep) marvels that, "though a life-long Democrat," Justice Clarke "steps down to make way for a Republican successor." Perhaps Mr. Clarke would reply that inasmuch as he served not as a Democrat but as a Supreme Court Justice, he finds room for the hope that his Republican successor will be right-minded enough to do likewise.

Answers In Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Does it weaken dandelions to pluck their flowers immediately after blooming?
Theoretically it weakens any weed to keep removing the blossom, as the root must then spend new strength in growing a new blossom, and in time gets tired. If you are trying to rid your lawn of dandelion, it will take no more time to cut out the root than to pluck a blossom. There is a good little tool on the principle of an apple corer that is a help in weeding lawns.

2. Do female elephants have tusks?
Yes; that is, African ones do, though not quite so big as the male's tusks. Indian female elephants have very small tusks. The reason so many menagerie elephants do not show tusks is that the latter have been removed, for safety.

3. Please tell me how to rid my garden from the white bugs commonly called sow-bugs. Don't tell me lime—they love it.

This "bug" is not a bug, but a crustacean, armadillum, breathing by gills that are adapted to taking air, under the abdomen. It loves damp places, as under stones, board walks, etc. Treat it about as you would slugs—turn up its hiding places and give it no retreat. It is a scavenger and not wholly harmful, but does not eat plant roots. If the time used for slugs does not deter it, you might try digging in flowers of sulphur near the plant roots. Better experiment on one infested plant at a time and see how the plant stands the remedy. Often anything that will kill the foe also kills the food.

HEN-PECKED MAN SOUGHT RELIEF

Gangling Stranger Wanted to Know If There Was Not Some Law He Could Invoke to Prevent Wife From Forcing Him to do Household Chores.
He was tall and stoop-shouldered and thin as he walked with a shuffling gait as he peered timidly at the world through a pair of big rimmed glasses perched awkwardly on the end of a rather long nose. As he paused outside the city hall this morning he peered at the gold leaf letters that have been inscribed in the arch above the main entrance, and murmured to himself "It says city hall on it so this must be the place."

Entering the lower corridor of the building he paused to question the first person he met who happened to be the third assistant janitor busy at work cleaning up and getting the building ready for the usual rush of a Monday's business.

Said the gangling one: "This is the place where the city judge presides and gives forth the result of his deliberations, is it not?"

The third assistant janitor scratched his head and said that the use of a dictionary was not included in the course prescribed in studying the best and most modern methods in janitoring.

"Ah, but pardon me, my good man," said the gangling one "what I meant to convey to your receptive ear was the question as to whether this is the building in which the city judge holds his court."

"Now you said something," replied the third assistant janitor as he wiped his forehead with a handkerchief.

"Life," continued the stranger "is not all bubbles and froth and marriage is not all we think it will be. I can remember the time when I first met her and the night we sat on the bench under the old elm tree and watched the clouds drift slowly past the face of the moon. There is something about moonshine that has a potent effect on the body."

By this time the third assistant janitor began to believe that he was talking to a "nut."

The gangling one continued: "Ah but those was the happy days, but now in the language of the street, 'them days is gone forever.'"

"Don't you feel good," interrupted the third assistant janitor at this point.

"My good man, that is the least of my troubles," murmured the stranger "and as you happened to be the first of my own sex who listens with a sympathetic ear I cannot but help pour out my troubles and woes. Alas, it was a sad day for me when I was led to the altar."

"Why don't you put your foot down," suggested the t. a. j.

"I have tried it," confessed the stranger "but when I do she steps on it."

He continued, "I have stood doing all the household chores about as long as I can. I did not take unto myself a wife with the intention of keeping house for her while she gadded the neighborhood, and I thought that there might be some law that I could invoke to restrain her from forcing me to get the meals, wash the dishes, mend the clothes and do other chores intended only for the hand of woman."

"H-u-h" grunted the t. a. j. sympathetically.

"What time did you say the judge would be at his office?" inquired the stranger.

"We don't expect him before 10 o'clock this morning," replied the t. a. j.

"Good heavens," muttered the stranger wildly as he glanced at his wrist watch "I can't wait that long; I have to be home and do the Monday wash."

And he left the building almost on a run. So agitated was he that he forgot to leave his name and address although his parting words to the t. a. j. were: "And don't forget to tell the judge that I want him to write my wife a good strong letter."

Lady Luck Was With Him.

An illiterate justice of the peace
used to consult what looked like a law book, but was only a mail order catalogue. One day a negro was hailed before the squire on a charge of drunkenness. The squire heard the evidence and then, after opening his book and glancing at it, fined the negro $4.40 to be worked out on the roads at 25 cents per day. As the negro was being led away, he said to the marshal: "I sho is a unlucky nigger."

"Unlucky nothing," said the marshal. "If the squire had happened to open that book at automobiles instead of pants you'd be working on the road for the rest of your life."—New York Evening Mail.

Where the Lawyers Laughed.

One of the most celebrated legal cases of American history was the so-called "Jones County Calf Case,"
which was tried six times in Jones county, Iowa, between the years of 1877 and 1889. The original trial was for malicious prosecution, arising out of the alleged depredations of some calfes. On each trial, with one exception, the plaintiff secured a verdict
of at least $1,000, and once his recovery was $7,500. The court costs were estimated at $3,500, and the value of the calves which were responsible for the whole fracas was $45.

BAR'S TRIBUTE TO
CAPT. HORNBECK

Surrogate's Court Suspend For Day.
After Local Attorneys Have Praised Late Associate's Qualities of Mind and Heart.

Most worthy and fitting tributes
were made in Surrogate's court in memory of Captain Benjamin J.
Hornbeck Monday by members of the Ulster county bar when at 11 o'clock former Surrogate Walter N.
Gill made a motion that out of respect to Mr. Hornbeck who for twenty years had been connected with the court that the court adjourn until Tuesday, September 26, at 10 a. m.

Among those present were Judge
Clearwater, Judge Betts, Judge Jenkins, Judge Fowler, Frederick Stephan, Jr., Robert G. Groves, Philip
Elling, Frank W. Brooks, Augustus
Schufeldt, Walter J. Miller, John W.
Gleason, Milton O. Auchmoody, De-
Witt Roosa, J. DePuy Hasbrouck,
Henry R. DeWitt, Virgil B. Van
Wagonen, Everett Fowler, Henry E.
McKenzie, Walter N. Gill, John L.
Sterley, County Clerk John Saxe,
Clerk D. B. Devo and Harold A.
Styles.

Judge Clearwater spoke highly of Mr. Hornbeck whom he had known personally for many years as a citizen, and of whom he had the highest regard as such as a military man and as an official. His association with him went back to days almost historical. He spoke of the coolness and presence of mind of Captain Hornbeck in the battle of Stony Hollow on October, 1878, and in the Blinewa-trouble in June, 1877; how when lives were imperiled the captain,
especially at Stony Hollow, had presented what might have been bloodshed; how Mr. Hornbeck by his knowledge of papers in the surrogates office had been of the utmost value to the members of the bar. It was eminently fitting and appropriate that some minute be made suggesting the appreciation in which Mr. Hornbeck was held by the bar and he made a motion that such action be taken and seconded the motion of Mr. Gill
to adjourn.

Judge Joseph M. Fowler in seconding the motion to adjourn and to appoint a committee spoke of the personal lovable qualities of Captain Hornbeck as a man, of his painstaking work in the office and also of his conscientious work as a member of the draft board.

Virgil B. Van Wagonen spoke of having known Captain Hornbeck for thirty five years when he first became a member of the military organization of the state, and told of his thoughtfulness of all those with whom he was associated. He spoke of his kindness and faithfulness as a member of the draft board. He referred to his kindness and faithful
work without stint during the World War and his strong patriotism and ever-readiness to assist all those with whom he came in contact.

Judge Betts referred to Captain Hornbeck's many good qualities and his careful and obliging manner and his willingness at all times to accommodate the public. He was held in high esteem because of his work and it would be a difficult task to replace him.

Judge James Jenkins said that it was true that the good qualities of men live after them, and Captain Hornbeck was such a man. He was intelligent, a thinker, a man who thought straight. His heart was in the right place always. He was very companionable, accommodating, public spirited and his faithfulness in the work of the draft board during the World War was a model which everyone might well follow in whatever
public work was undertaken.

DeWitt Roosa spoke of how he had watched Captain Hornbeck's career
in his various public positions, and it had become better and better. He referred to his fidelity and faithful work in the draft board and said he would continue to live in the memory
of all who knew him.

Surrogate Kaufman said: "The memory of Captain Hornbeck is richly deserving of the impressive tributes so eloquently made by the Bar of Ulster county, and it is eminently fitting and proper that a permanent memorial to his worth and service be preserved in the records of this court. It is in no perfunctory sense
but with deepest reverence and sincerity that I entertain this motion and join in praise of Captain Hornbeck."

"In the death of Captain Hornbeck
the state of New York and the county of Ulster have lost a capable and devoted public official, and this community has been deprived of an upright, patriotic and honorable citizen. For a number of years it was my privilege to be intimately acquainted with Captain Hornbeck,
and of course, for the past twenty months I have been closely associated with him in this office. My friendship and association with him em-generated the most profound respect and regard. Captain Hornbeck was a model public official. To him his position was not a political job, but a public trust. I doubt if any public officer in the state ever served more faithfully and painstakingly than did Captain Hornbeck. For more than 20 years he was here every day and every hour that this office was open. He was the first to arrive at the morning and the last to leave at night. He could not be persuaded to take a vacation, and his first absence from his duties to my knowledge was when he was compelled to leave a few days ago by the illness which terminated in his death. In the performance of his work the captain was exceptionally competent and scrupulously careful. The records of this office which he kept are models of neatness and accuracy. But the value of the captain to this office extended far beyond the services which he gave in the office. He was continually going beyond the required limits of his position and of his own free will assisting everyone who had occasion to consult the records of the office. He knew every corner and corner in the office and had a very thorough knowledge of the valuable records, and very frequently he would spend hours in helping lawyers and other frequent visitors of the record vaults to investigate ancient records. Moreover, the day morning at 10 o'clock."

Arthur Inaugurated in New York.

Chester A. Arthur, who succeeded to the Presidency upon the assassination of President Garfield, held the distinction of being a President whose inauguration took place outside the national capital. At the time of Garfield's death Arthur was in New York
on a political mission, and was notified of his predecessor's death by a telegram from members of the cabinet,
who expressed the wish that he would go to Long Branch the following morning, and accompany the President's remains to Washington. On the advice of his friends, Arthur took the oath of office that night before a member of the New York Supreme court,
leaving immediately for Long Branch,
where he escorted the President's remains to the capital. After his arrival in Washington he was inaugurated in a more formal manner before the chief justice of the United States Supreme court, and delivered a brief
address.

all the "executives" with a gold Eagle Badge, the highest award in scouting. About 5,000 boys have won the badge in the past ten years, but "Uncle Dan" has the only gold and silver one.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

PAIR OF RUBBERS

"It's really a shame," said the first rubber.

"A perfect shame," said the second rubber.

"Of course I don't know what we can do about it," said the first rubber.

"I don't suppose there is anything we can do about it," said the second rubber.

"On a really rainy day it is a different matter," said the first rubber.

"Entirely different," said the second rubber.

"Yes," said the first rubber, "on a really rainy day we are appreciated. But on other days when it looks like rain but doesn't rain how dreadful it is!"

"I just heard some one say: 'Isn't that just my luck! Here I brought along my rubbers and an umbrella and a raincoat and the sun has come out.'"

"And," said the second rubber, "her companion said: 'Of course that is always the way! It does seem funny,' the second rubber continued, "to hear the same old things again and again. Often when I'm on the street and passing other rubbers I hear their owners say such silly things and they say them as though they were the only ones who had thought up such speeches."

"Now, when some one says that it is just their luck and just because they brought rubbers and an umbrella along that it did not rain they believe that to be the truth.

"Oh, Mama, Why?"

"And yet you and I know that that has made no difference with the King of the Clouds."

"He has looked down and having seen that lady with her rubbers and umbrella decided then that he would let Mr. Sun take the sky just to annoy her."

"Take the sky?" questioned the first rubber.

"Haven't you heard some one say of another that that person has taken the floor? Meaning, of course, that that person has been the speaker or principal one about at that time."

"Well, I can't speak of Mr. Sun as having taken the floor so I speak of him as having taken the sky," the second rubber explained.

"But it does seem so absurd to me to hear people talk. I've been in shops and some one will say: 'Just because I particularly want that color ribbon of course they are all out of it.'"

"And then I've been in a taxi-cab and my owner has said: 'There! I was waiting until I got drenched for a taxi and none came along and now that I'm in one I see any number pass by.'"

"Oh, how such speeches do amuse me. Well, it is a good thing we can find some amusement when we are only a pair of rubbers."

"Yes," said the first rubber, "I've heard such speeches, just as you have, and they, too, have amused me. Just as though our owner or any other person were singled out in such a way!"

"But it is too bad we're not more popular. Dear me, dear me, how many of us have heard it said: 'Oh, Mama, why do I have to put on rubbers? They're so hot and horrid. Please don't tell me I have to put on rubbers. The ground isn't really wet.'"

"And then, too, grown-ups don't flatter us any more than they can help."

"Yet when it pours people are thankful enough for their rubbers and that we will keep them from catching cold."

"But even though we do so much good and help people so much still we are not popular and I doubt if we ever will be."

"I doubt it too," said the second rubber.

And then the rubbers creaked a little song they had made up. It was called:

"The Pair of Rubbers and Their Song."

This was the way it went:

"We're only a pair of rubbers
And nobody cares much for us
When we have to be worn
On uncertain days, oh goodness,
There is such a fuss!
We're not things of beauty,
We're not things of brains,
But to keep people from Catching cold we really
Do take pains
And so we should get some praise!"

The KITCHEN CABINET

The health and morals of a people depend mainly upon the food they eat, and the homes they live in.—Eileen Richards

The reward of a thing well done is to have done it—Emerson.

SIMPLE DESSERTS

A dinner is not complete without some form of dessert, which may be as simple as one's time and means allow.

Two or three stuffed dates, stuffed with fondant or nuts, then rolled in sugar, will make a most acceptable finish for a meal, and one which may be prepared and kept on hand for any emergency.

Prune Dimples.—Take a cupful of flour sifted with a teaspoonful of baking powder and a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt; mix with good rich milk to make a drop batter. Grease small cups, drop in a spoonful of the batter, then add a spoonful of stewed prunes with some of the juice; finish with another spoonful of batter, leaving room for rising and set the cups into a pan of boiling water; cover closely and boil 15 minutes. Serve with prune juice and cream.

Coconut Pie.—Line a deep pie plate with rich pastry and let stand in the ice chest for an hour. Beat four eggs, one-half cupful of sugar, the rind of a lemon and add two cupfuls of milk. Three eggs are sufficient, but four make a richer pie. Sprinkle two cupfuls of coconut over the top and bake in a moderate oven one hour.

Bread Pudding.—Pour a quart of scalded milk over two cupfuls of bread crumbs; cover and let stand 15 minutes, then add four egg yolks, two tablespoonsful of melted butter, some grated nutmeg, two cupfuls of apples cut in eighths and one-half cupful of sugar. Fold in the beaten whites with three tablespoonsful of sugar added and bake in a buttered pudding dish for an hour.

There is no dessert that the children like better, except ice cream, than a layer cake filled and covered with sweetened and flavored whipped cream. If for a nice occasion a few candied berries may be added for a garnish.

A green pepper parboiled, finely minced and added to creamed eggs, makes an unusual and appetizing dish to serve with toast for luncheon or tea.

Violin Strings.
Each string in a violin is of a different thickness, according to the tone and tension required. The fourth string is covered with fine wire, either a white metal or real silver, hence it is often called the "silver string." Violas, violoncellos and double-basses have each two covered strings, the object being to insure a sufficient gravity of tone without having too clumsy a material. The covered strings on the guitar are upon a basis of silk instead of catgut. The best gut comes from Italy, which has been famous for centuries for this product. Strings are carefully selected and graded, as to size so that they shall be uniform. The larger strings for the bigger instruments are stretched on frames for three or four days. The covered strings are finished on a special lathe which covers them with fine silk or fine silver-plated copper wire, or even silver.—Scientific American.

(Official Report)
The annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Ulster county was held in the M. E. Church, Port Ewen, Wednesday and Thursday, September 26-27.

Wednesday morning session opened with Scripture reading and prayer by Mrs. Edgar Ellsworth of St. Remy.

Convention called to order by the president, Mrs. Martha H. Bell of Milton.

Roll call by corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. B. Rose, Highland.
The Rev. George E. Wright, pastor of M. E. Church, extended a welcome from church and community. The latch string of home and heart was open to their guests.

Miss Mary E. Bishop, president of Port Ewen Union, gave a most cordial greeting.

Mrs. Edward Young of Milton responded in appreciative words, acknowledging their hospitality.

Mrs. George H. Brown of Highland, musical director, gave fine musical selections.

The Rev. P. N. Chase of Kingston, in a short talk on the prohibition law, emphasized the necessity of the need of directing into right channels
the efforts for the enforcement of that law.

The reports of superintendents of departments followed in the various lines of activities the work for the year has been gratifying.

A paper on "Evangelistic Work in Schools" was read by Mrs. L. M.
Weed of Kingston. The point made was that the teacher, in order to be successful in her work, should have the cooperation and sympathy of the parents.

After the noon-tide prayer by Mrs.
Seafield of Highland, the morning
session was adjourned.

Lunch and social hour followed.

Wednesday Afternoon,
2 p. m.—Session opened by Mrs.
Edward Jacobs of Glendale leading the devotional, 13th Psalm read. Prayer by Mrs. Helen Palmer
of Plattekill.

The annual address of the president, Mrs. M. H. Bell, was then given.
Her words of sympathy and encouragement for the workers of the union were fully appreciated. She believes in prayer, in energy, in perseverance, and urges concerned
faithfulness in the work.

After the address there were reports and short talks given by the corresponding secretary, financial secretary and the treasurer. Their words were followed with close attention and interest.

The treasurer's report showed that the county union closed its financial year in a very satisfactory manner.

Miss Inez Schwarz of Shawanunk gave an interesting report of the State W. C. T. U. convention.

A cordial welcome was given the visitors from Orange County Union,
Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Townsend.

Afternoon session closed.

Wednesday Evening,
The opening session of the convention opened with music conducted by the Port Ewen M. E. church choir.
Devotional was led by the Rev.
George E. Wright. After a fine
recitation by Master Charles Con-
ning and a duet sweetly sung by Mr.
and Mrs. Howe of Port Ewen, the national secretary of W. C. T. U., Mrs. Maude B. Perkins, gave the evening address.

Mrs. Perkins spoke very impres-sively of the need of early instruction
for our young people. The strong bulwark of the nation will be the youth, trained in pure principles and ideals.

Very convincing illustrations
were given regarding the lasting impressions made upon the minds of boys and girls. Her faith is strong in a Y. P. U. training and believes that the results of its teachings will be felt and seen in nobler character
and loftier ideals.

Her thoughts were noble and inspiring, and the address was listened to with deepest interest.

Mrs. William Lais, of Milton gave a finely rendered musical selection.

The evening session closed with the offering, announcements and benediction.

Thursday Morning,
Morning session opened by Mrs.
George Hartshorn of Highland,
rejoicingly conducting the devotional
meeting.

After the devotional, convention
was called to order by the president and greetings from Dutchess county
in convention, 2nd John, 8th verse, was then read. There was a finely rendered piano solo by Miss Hellock, after which a beautiful and touching memorial service for those dead had taken from the ranks was conducted by Mrs. Albert Palen. A loyal, tender tribute was paid to the memory of those "passed away."

Officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, Mrs. Albert Palen, vice president, Mrs. Edward Young; corresponding secretary,
Mrs. J. B. Rose; recording secretary,
Mrs. William Lobert.

Superintendents for the departments were then appointed by the executive committee.

The retiring president, Mrs. Bell, and the newly elected executive were presented with tokens of the esteem
of the members of the unions.

After finishing the business of the morning session, noon-tide prayer
was offered by Mrs. Maude Perkins and doxology sung in closing.

Thursday Afternoon Session,
The devotional was conducted by Mrs. L. M. Weed, the Evangelistic superintendent. The 23rd Psalm was repeated in unison, and fervent prayer offered.

A beautiful praise service followed. The Rev. George Seafield of Highland gave many Scriptural references to the power of music. Also a tribute was paid to the inspiring
music so helpful to the big program
of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Solo, "Alone With Jesus" was sweetly sung by Miss Carol Seafield.

A request for a duet, "Ivory Palaces" was beautifully rendered by Mrs. George Brown and Miss Sea-field.

The service closed with singing
"Glad-Bye Forever, Salome."

To Mrs. George Brown, musical director, the Port Ewen choir and the other singers, great credit
should be given for their excellent music so helpful to our convention.

Mrs. Brown was elected musical director for the ensuing year.

The following resolutions were presented by the resolution committee:

Resolved, That we, the White Ribbons, faithfully exercise our citizenship responsibilities and attend more earnestly to registration and enrollment. That we arouse all women voters to the necessity of exercising their civic duties.

Resolved: We note with deep sorrow the death of our sister Mrs.
George LeFevre, who so faithfully
attended the conferences and conventions of the Ulster County W. C.
T. U., and who always manifested great loyalty to our principles and program; who served so faithfully
as superintendent of the department of Soldiers and Sailors for many years.

Resolved: That we the members
of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Ulster county, assembled in convention, express our deepest appreciation of the gracious hospitality shown us by the Port Ewen W. C. T. U., the Methodist Church, the hostesses, and all others
who helped make our visit at Port Ewen so delightful. We also express our thanks to Mrs. Maude Perkins and the other conference
speakers for their helpful messages,
and to those who rendered musical selections so acceptably.

The convention closed with earnest words of farewell and prayer by the president, and singing "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

First Illustrated Book.

There was a time when the first illustrated book created a veritable sensation. The event occurred in the year 70 B. C. Varro, a rather mediocre writer of ancient Rome, had been struggling for recognition for a good many years, when he suddenly conceived the idea of preparing a volume containing the biographies of 700 of his famous fellow-citizens. History is silent on the rather interesting question whether Varro charged them for his services, but it is loud in his praise
as the first writer who conceived the idea of illustrating his work with portraits. They were crudely drawn, but they were illustrations all the same,
and after that the custom of em-bellishing historical works with drawings became a fad among the writers of those days.

ANTIQUITIES IN WHITE HOUSE

Attractions Well Worth Inspection Are Known to Comparatively Few Visitors in Washington.

Least advertised of the attractions of the White House is a collection of antiquities relating to the historic mansion, which is on view in a basement room adjoining the oval room directly beneath the blue room.

This oval room, by the way, was used for receiving guests in the old days, when the main door of entrance to the White House was in the middle of the south side and not on the north front, as at present. It is slightly above the ground level, and the old-time entrance still remains, opening directly upon the spacious lawn. Formerly a road led past it, which in wet weather was so muddy that arriving guests had trouble to keep their feet dry.

Thus it was in Dolley Madison's day, and one of the most interesting curios in the little museum is her book of cooking recipes, blank pages of which are inscribed with culinary ideas in her own handwriting. There is also a blue-and-gold china bowl, two feet high, upheld by three graceful female figures, which, imported from France, was in use during her reign.

Abigail Adams, the first mistress of the White House, is represented by a silhouette of herself, cut out of black paper by some unknown hand. Two saltcellars of hers are also in the collection, as well as a huge silver-mounted goblet of full-quart capacity which her husband used when he was President.

There are pieces of china representing every set used at the White House from the earliest days until now—the latest, white and gold, being the Wilson set for the state dining room. A remarkable piece from the Harrison set is a turkey platter bearing a beautiful painting of a gobbler. Other pieces of that set are adorned with various pictures of animals, while the vegetable dishes are ornamented with paintings of different vegetables. It was designed for a descriptive table service, so to speak.

Naturally Indignant.

Representative Allen T. Treadway of Massachusetts, who has been touring in Europe, and Levi Cooke of this city, who has been touring in New England, met in the house corridor and swapped experiences. When Cooke's turn came he talked so fast the congressman had no chance to get in a word. He described a visit he paid to a certain famous inn in the Berkshires. It was in the nature of a general complaint against the hotel with a final parting shot at the bed he had to sleep upon. He wound up by rolling of discovering scratched on the headboard of the bed these words: "This is the worst bed I ever slept in (signed) Daniel Webster."

During the entire recital of this story, Mr. Treadway's countenance registered, successively, surprise, indignation, anger, despair, wrath and utter collapse. Impetively he tried to reply to the rapid-fire talk of Mr. Cooke, mopping his brow and the space under his collar with his handkerchief.

Colleagues who observed the scene thought Representative Treadway had a stroke of apoplexy. The real reason is that Treadway owns and operates that particular inn, which has for many years been the model of hotel excellence. Treadway was born on the premises and is proud of the standing of his inn since it was the principal stage coach stop on the road from Albany to Boston.—Washington Star

LION TAMER AFRAID OF CATS

Jim Coyle, Who Pacifies Wild Beasts, Trembles at the Sight of the Domestic Tabby.

Jim Coyle, head keeper at the Central park zoo, who beards the lion in his den and calls the fiercest black leopard in captivity Tootle, is afraid of only one animal—a house cat.

"I can't explain why an ordinary cat that babies will play with holds such terror for me," Coyle said, according to the New York Sun. "Late at night when something goes wrong in the lion house and they all get to roaring so that I'm afraid they'll wake up residents on Fifth avenue I can go into their cages with the same feeling of security that I would go into a child's room at night. But let a cat brush against me and I come back through the dark and I'm scared to death."

In handling the lions one of Coyle's fingers was bitten off and his arm ripped from his wrist to his elbow—and he holds no grudge against the lion.

"Oh, that lion and I were the best of friends after the accident," he said. "You see it was partly my own fault. I went in to latch his cage after hours, when he wasn't expecting anybody, and I didn't have on my uniform, to which he was accustomed. But the main thing was, I forgot to make him speak first. If I had called him by name before sticking my arm in the cage he would have known me instantly."

Coyle says that a lion not only knows those he has met before, but what he knows the moment a person steps before the cage whether that person likes animals. And right here, perhaps, the reason Coyle dislikes cats.

"I never feel that a cat is really my friend," he said. "Maybe because I'm afraid of them to the extent that I never get chummy enough with them. But I always have the feeling that they like me for what they can get out of me and that they'd turn against me in a minute. It makes cold chills run up and down my back to have one of the slippy things around me."

"It's foolish, perhaps, because they couldn't do you a lot of harm if they did turn against you—but give me panthers and wolves and wildcats even and keep your Tabby away."

Lived Thirty Years on Pillar.

A shepherd of Cilicia named Simeon now known in church history as St. Simeon Stylites was the founder of the Stylites sometimes called the Air Martyrs but usually known as Pillar Saints and its most conspicuous example. With the idea of gaining the favor of heaven and attaining sainthood on earth he took up his residence on a pillar or column said to have been 60 feet high, the top of which was about three feet in diameter and was inclosed by an iron railing.

He is said to have lived here for 30 years, never descending, eating sparingly of food sent up to him, always standing or bowing in prayer, and exposed to all kinds of weather. He wore the skins of animals, and always kept an iron band around his neck. At a certain hour every day he addressed those gathered at the foot of the pillar, exhorting them to lives of holiness. He died on top of this pillar and his body was taken to Antioch and buried with imposing ceremonies. The sect did not entirely disappear till the Twelfth century.

"Facing the Music."

The proverbial phrase "to face the music" is probably derived from the stage, where it was used by actors in the greenroom when preparing to go on the boards.

100,000 ARE CUT FROM U. S. ARMY

Third Reorganization in Year and Half Forced by Congress.

96,723 ENLISTED MEN LEFT

Greatest Cuts Made in Coast Defenses and Mobile Forces—It Was Found Impossible to Reduce the "Overhead" Administrative Force for the Three-part Army to Any Appreciable Extent—Statement Tells What Has Been Done.

Another reorganization plan for the regular army, the third to be drafted in the last year and a half as a result of cuts in strength ordered by congress, has been completed, and the War department in a statement showed just what had been done with the regular forces to carry out successive laws.

"This completes," the statement said, "a reduction which has been virtually continuous for eighteen months, totaling approximately 100,000 men, or 45 per cent of the actual strength."

The department's statement said the plans were now being carried into effect, but that redistribution of the troops in permanent spots which the project contemplates, was being delayed "in order not to interfere with the training of the civilian components of the army during the summer camps."

Regulars Perform Same Missions.

Explaining the difficulties encountered in planning a reorganization to conform to the enlisted strength of 125,000 as fixed in the last appropriation acts, the statement pointed out that no change had been made in the missions assigned to the regulars in the national defense act of 1920 under which an authorized strength of 285,000 was declared necessary in the judgment of congress to carry out the military policy then laid down.

"The total present strength," the statement said, "is 135,000 less than authorized by the act which resulted from the lessons of the World war and assigned the missions to the regular army and 102,000 less than the authorized prewar strength before the three-part army was created."

The first problem taken up in the reorganization was apportionment of the authorized strength among the branches of the service in order to keep the military machine as well balanced as possible in view of the specialized units which must be retained as a war preparation. Allotments were made with the reductions in each arm from the national defense act strength, also shown as follows: Infantry from 110,000 to 46,123 men, cavalry, from 20,000 to 9,871 field artillery, 37,000 to 17,173 coast artillery, from 30,000 to 12,026, engineers, from 12,000 to 5,020, air service, from 10,000 to 8,970 and signal corps from 7,000 to 2,194. In noncombatant branches, the quartermaster corps was reduced from 20,000 to 8,000, ordnance, from 4,500 to 2,307, finance from 900 to 399, chemical warfare from 1,200 to 445, medical, from 14,000 to 6,850.

96,723 Men Are Available

Under the reduction plan there remains available for use in continental United States 96,723 enlisted men "for the performance of the many duties assigned under the national defense act." This number includes about 1,000 men still in Germany.

Among troops in the United States the greatest cuts were made in the coast defenses and mobile forces, the latter term applying to those units available for "emergency purposes for protection of our southern border as a model and demonstrating force for citizen soldiers and as a basis for expansion in the event of hostile threat against the United States." The War department statement added that it was found impossible to reduce the "overhead" administrative force for the three-part army to any appreciable extent or in proportion to the reduction made in line troops.

PULL HORSE FROM MANHOLE

Sympathetic Men of Street Crowd Rescue Animal With Derrick

Suggestions and counter suggestions flew thick and fast from a traffic-blocking crowd that watched the efforts of workmen to pull a 1,000-pound horse out of a manhole at Thirty-ninth and Third avenue, New York.

The horse, breaking away from a light gig, shied at a tool box of Edison company workmen. The animal jumped over the box and landed with its hind legs in the manhole. Then he slid down ten feet to bed rock.

Men of the Edison crew arranged bands about the body of the horse, and with the aid of fifty volunteers on the derrick rope, succeeded in rescuing the animal.

Lose Race to Moran Summit.

After scrambling for 12 hours over glaciers and precipices in an effort to be the first men to reach the summit of Mount Moran in the Teton mountain range of Wyoming, Leroy Jeffers of New York, secretary of the Associated Mountaineering Clubs of North America, accompanied by Warren Loyer of Syracuse, N. Y., a Yellowstone park forest ranger, attained the top only to find that a party of climbers headed by Dr. L. A. Hardy of New York had reached the pinnacle more than a week earlier.

Island Brings Bride Luck.

A romantic superstition has earned for Norfolk island, in the Pacific ocean, the nickname of "Honeymoon island." It is believed that a bride who spends her first month of married life there will be assured of long life, health, wealth and happiness.

HAS ICE AT ALL SEASONS

Montana Indian, Digging Well, Scarcely Came Upon Most Remarkable Freak of Nature.

More than eight years ago John Spotted Wolf, an Indian of the Cheyenne reservation in eastern Montana, decided that he should like to have a well near his log cabin. So he and his wife Mary chose a spot near a large pine tree, perhaps 20 rods from the door, and then John began to dig.

By noon of the second day he had dug down ten feet. Although the weather was mild, he had complained of being cold while at work. After eating he put on an extra coat and went to work again. He kept Mary and her brother Rolling Bull busy hauling up and carrying away the dirt that he loosened. But in spite of John's extra clothing he still was cold. On the third morning he added more clothing; but when night came and the well had reached the depth of 18 feet he was almost frozen.

The next morning he again descended the well and worked as rapidly as his many layers of clothing would permit. After a while water began to appear. Suddenly he shouted, "Pull me up! Pull me up!"

John had barely reached the surface before the well filled to within a foot of the top and then began to freeze around the edges. In a short time only a small opening perhaps a foot in diameter remained.

The well remains the same way year after year, the Youth's Companion states. During the day in summer the sun melts the ice around the top, but at night it freezes again. The well, which furnishes a permanent ice supply for the people in the neighborhood, is a strange freak of nature of which there are so many in the western part of the state. Tourists who visit the reservation regard it as a great curiosity.

BETTER THAN DISH WASHING

Student Finds Occupation of Driving a Taxi Allows Him More Time for His Books.

The passerby stopped beside the taxicab parked near Bryant park remarks the New York Sun. He had passed the same driver several times, and had noticed he was reading. Once it was Plato's dialogues another time John Ruskin's "The Stones of Venice," and now his interest was spurred to the questioning point by observing the driver was delving into Aristotle.

"I'm working my way through college," he said. "I heard about students who washed dishes and all that sort of thing. But taxi driving is the ideal job for the student. I don't start to work until late in the afternoon. I have a rush at only certain hours. The rest of the time I spend studying. You get plenty of time in between fares to learn the Euclid, the history of the pyramids, and why Ruskin is dead against too much purple in painting. I suggest taxi driving any time instead of waiting on tables."

Thought Photographed.

Commandant Darget of the French army and a noted military criminologist as well as a psychologist, experiments in thought photography, resulting in pictures of objects suggested mentally, which, when projected from the mind to a highly sensitized photographic plate held against the forehead of a subject leave a tangible impression of the object thought of at the moment.

If a criminal fears talking in his sleep what double-distilled horror will he not know when he comes to realize that the very thoughts of his waking hours may be read at police headquarters as if in cold print, perhaps even more clearly than if he himself were present trying to evade questions?

Fish's Vision Limited.

To the fish the surface of the water, seen from below, presents a circular window surrounded by mirrors, according to Edward Ringwood Hewitt, author of "Secrets of the Salmon," soon to be published by Scribner's. It seems that a fish can see out into the air only through a limited aperture; everywhere else the surface reflects the contents of the stream, or (if it be a shallow one) the bottom. This is because the light rays passing from water to air are bent, and when the angle of the light ray from the fish's eye with the vertical becomes great enough, it is bent backward so that it does not enter the air at all, but is directed downward toward the bottom.

In Your Garden.

It is truly wonderful how many birds will visit modest gardens during a year. They will, during the spring migration, be most in evidence from early daylight till breakfast time, and then again as evening comes on, says the American Forestry Magazine. When autumn approaches, the migration that takes place is equally interesting. In winter we may look for various flocks, sparrows, crossbills, hawks, owls and not a few other species that come to us during that time of the year.

Named After Balfour.

Large numbers of Jewish children born in Palestine during the last month have been given the first name of Balfour, after the British acting foreign secretary. The exact declaration is the author of the Zionist declaration bearing his name, and is also credited with bringing about the approval of the Palestine mandate which secures establishment of the Jewish national home.

"Fiddle Bows"

The instruments of the "string choir" are all played with a bow with occasional pizzicato or plucking of the strings, as required by the music. A bow is an instrument of wood and horsehair employed to set the strings of the violin or other musical instrument in vibration. As its name implies, it was originally curved. The violin bow is usually about twenty inches long and the cello bow is a little shorter. The double-bass bow has a large arch and is shorter. The early bows were so crude that they added little to the delicacy of tone. The earliest improvement was made when a metal band with teeth-like edges was introduced with the design of regulating the position and tension of the hair at or near the handle. It was reserved for Francois Tourte (1747-1833) to devise the plan of keeping the hair flat by means of a clasp, and the screw and button for slackening or tightening the hair at pleasure. —Scientific American.

COLORED MEN MEET TO ORGANIZE

The first meeting of colored men of the city and county was held at the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church Monday night. The meeting was well attended and plans for the organization were discussed. The Rev. E. O. Clark introduced the Rev. H. D. Lowther as the first speaker. Mr. Lowther said he was somewhat reluctant in answering the appeal, "but having come from an influential man and a representative body of men such as we have here tonight," he deemed it an honor and pleasure. "One great trouble with us is we have not learned to keep together and to this end we are endeavoring to achieve. Beside, education we must get consolidation, showing that there are few men of the race who are in representative positions with all their education. We must buy our plans for our boys and girls."

The Rev. Mr. Clark, in commenting the address of Mr. Lowther, said: "We are now facing an issue of the American politics and the black man." He said the race in many instances has been unfairly dealt with by politicians, and yet the black man is the most lamb-like element in the body politic. The feeling of the black man is one of discontentment because of continual race promises. He said Ohio, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Indiana and Illinois were governed by negro votes. This information was only a guide to future polling.

C. Van Duzee then asked whether the meeting was for the purpose of organizing a political club. Mr. Lowther replied that it was not; that he knew the objection of many people about the minister in politics, but if politics is objectionable to the minister, the same objection applies to every Christian man and woman.

Mr. Clark said that the objections to ministers was a thing of the past, that as far as politics is concerned we will never have clean politics until the ministers help to make it clean. It was then explained that the plan of the organization was to link with the national association for the advancement of colored people.

N. West, H. Van Duzee, H. Latour, J. Butler and others voiced their sentiments in favor of the organization. The meeting was profitable to all concerned and a pledge of race unity and loyalty to the Stars and Stripes was taken.

Adjournment followed to meet on Monday, October 2, to perfect plans for the organization.

In loving memory of Mrs. Annie A. Wilson who passed from this life to life eternal, on August 29-22.

Earthly ties, once more are broken. Once again a soul called "home." Gentle, loving, patient, Annie. Sister, mother, wife—"in one."

We shall miss her from this earth life. With its trouble, toil and care. But—will be content in knowing—"She is happier—Over There."

Once again "the gates" are open To admit earth toil-worn guests. Gentle, loving, patient, Annie. Gone—to her "Eternal Rest."

"Over There" the flowers are blooming. Here is left "a vacant chair." Still—we'll be content in knowing, "She is happier—Over There."

The Giants finally clinched the National League pennant, their eighth championship under the McGraw regime, by cutting a five to four victory over the Cardinals in the tenth. George Kelly's single produced the winning run and his homer in the sixth with Young aboard, tied the score.

Eppa Rixey lauded his twenty-third victory of the season in turning back the Phils, 10 to 3. The Reds made sixteen hits off Behan and Smith.

JUST RAKED OUT THE FISH

Truthful Old Gentleman Recalls to Mind a Catch That Was Really Worth While.

"It was just such a day as this," said the old fisherman. "There was a warm drizzly rain falling, with a light wind from the south, a most favorable day to fish. It was down on the south fork along in the late Nineties that I made the big catch."

"How many did you get?" I asked, as I moved my chair closer, so as not to miss any of the story.

"Well, it was no use to try to count them," said the old fisherman, as he refilled his pipe. "I was raking hay down on a big meadow near the river, when a big school of salmon trout came up, so I just drove back and forth across the river and raked them out, you could see piles of fish for miles on both sides of the river."

"That sure must have been some big school of fish," I remarked.

"Well, that was the most fish I ever seen," he said as he tilted back in his chair and crossed his legs.

"They had to put in new piers under all the bridges on the river; those fish had completely worn them off when they rubbed them coming up the river."

"Were there any very big ones?" I asked.

"Well, yes," drolled the old man, "some of the farmers along the river used the backbones of the largest ones to stake their beans on."

"I suppose the ribs formed a ladder to gather the beans with," I said.

"Yes, that's right," said the old man as he plodded down the hill.—Washington Star.

Marie de Medici, "Cold."

Henry IV, most gallant and beloved of French monarchs, was a tender and playful father, whose children, called him, against all court precedent, simply "papa." But his queen, Marie de Medici, says a recent biography by M. Louis Barillot, was ceremonious, cold and severe.

She did not overlook the slightest fault, and for every transgression her advice was, "Use the whip."

Even after the death of his father, when Prince Louis had become Louis XIII, the queen, who, history records, never once unbent to kiss him during her entire regency, kept up the old discipline; at the same time she carefully observed the etiquette of respect to a reigning sovereign. Just after being punished the little king chanced to enter a room where she sat surrounded with ladies of the court. Including the queen mother, rose and curtsied at his entrance. He burst out, childishly, "I should be better pleased with less obeisance and less whipping!"

Republican Administration Spends More for World War Veterans Than for Any Item Except the Public Debt.

U. S. REPRESENTATIVE CARY W. RIDDICK
(MONTANA), MEMBER HOUSE COMMITTEE
ON AGRICULTURE

In November, 1918, the people elected a Republican Congress. The first session of this newly elected Republican Congress began May 19, 1919.

With it began practically all Federal aid for relief and assistance of those who served in the World War. An elaborate program was formulated providing for hospital and medical aid for all disabled and diseased ex-service men. The program included those suffering from mental diseases as a result of their war experience; also vocational training and rehabilitation; also financial allotments for those engaged in such training; also compensation for men totally or partially disabled, and for their dependents; and for the dependents of those who died as a result of injury or disease contracted while in the service of their country.

There was expended to July 1, 1922, for the purposes of carrying out this program the sum of $1,135,854,385. In addition an appropriation of $428,038,842, has just been made by the Congress for the Veterans' Bureau for the coming fiscal year. This is a greater appropriation than made for any other purpose except in payment of the public debt.

Following the war the administration of relief for ex-service men was divided among several bureaus and this necessitated tremendous overhead expense, eating up a disproportionate amount of money appropriated for aid of World War veterans, and it occasioned endless delay in handling ex-service men's cases and put them to unfair expense. To remedy these evils the Republican Congress passed a measure, combining all agencies dealing with ex-service men under the Veterans' Bureau.

Following the war, hundreds of thousands of veterans permitted their insurance to lapse, largely because of the slipshod manner in which their claims were handled under the Democratic administration. At the request of representatives of the ex-service men the Republican Congress made it possible for all ex-service men whose policies had lapsed to be reinstated at any time prior to March 4, 1926.

The hospitalization and medical treatment of ex-service men was found to be unsatisfactory and Congress transferred 99 hospitals to use of the Veterans' Bureau. The number of beds in these hospitals taken over by the Veterans' Bureau is in excess of 28,000.

There were many ex-service men living in remote sections of the country who were not aware of the benefits they could receive and should be receiving from the government under the Veterans' Bureau. In order that no worthy ex-service man entitled to benefits of any kind might be neglected, the Veterans' Bureau conducted a drive in which over 175,000 ex-service men were interviewed and 110,000 new claims were filed and handled as a result.

As a result of this tremendous program of Federal aid to ex-service men all of which has been put into effect by the Republican Party and the money for which has been appropriated by a Republican Congress, the following summarization may be given:

(1) Over 240,000 ex-service men have received hospital treatment; 30,000 ex-service men are now receiving treatment in hospitals; over 1,000,000 ex-service men have been called for examination in order to ascertain if they should receive hospital or medical treatment.

(2) Over 150,000 ex-service men have entered vocational training and 150,000 more have been declared eligible for vocational training.

(3) Compensation for disabled ex-service men or their dependents is being paid out at a rate in excess of $1,000,000 in cash every day, including Sundays.

(4) Over 50,000 medical examinations are being made free every month in order to ascertain the physical and mental treatments needed by afflicted ex-service men.

(5) Over 1,000 new claims are being handled every day by the Veterans' Bureau and all work in that bureau is practically current and being conducted at a minimum loss of time and a minimum expense both to the government and to the ex-service man concerned.

(6) An insurance business for over 800,000 ex-service men is being conducted by the government, without any cost of administration to ex-service men, at premium rates far below those private companies charge for like policies.
